Executive summary

In our last report on Naspers and Prosus (in Sep 2024), we discussed the management changes and Tencent's 2Q24 results, since then, the following events have taken place:

- Naspers and Prosus released half-year results for FY2025.
- Trip.com has been disposed of and Swiggy Limited IPO'd in India, valuing it at $11.3bn at the time of listing.
- Prosus 1st half results had the following highlights:
 - Operations delivered top line growth of 26%.
 - Adjusted EBIT came in at $60m, turning positive for the first time after reporting a loss of $110m in the first half of 2024.
 - Profitability was driven by Classifieds and Food Delivery with EBIT figures of $133m and $94m respectively.
 - Core headline earnings increased 76% to $3.5bn

We have updated our valuation to account for the continued share repurchases (repurchase history in Appendix) and changes in market value of listed assets. We have made adjustments to the position of Trip.com and the Swiggy Limited listing. Our intrinsic values remain relatively unchanged (previously NPN: R3 840 and PRX: R740).

Analyst thesis

Naspers and Prosus shares trade at meaningful discounts to NAV. Management continues to address the closing of the discount which could unlock value for shareholders. However, Naspers and Prosus remain significantly exposed to Tencent which comes with substantial risks. Our view on Tencent, the primary driver of Naspers and Prosus shares and the largest component of NAV, remains cautious especially given the unpredictable and significant influence of the Chinese government.

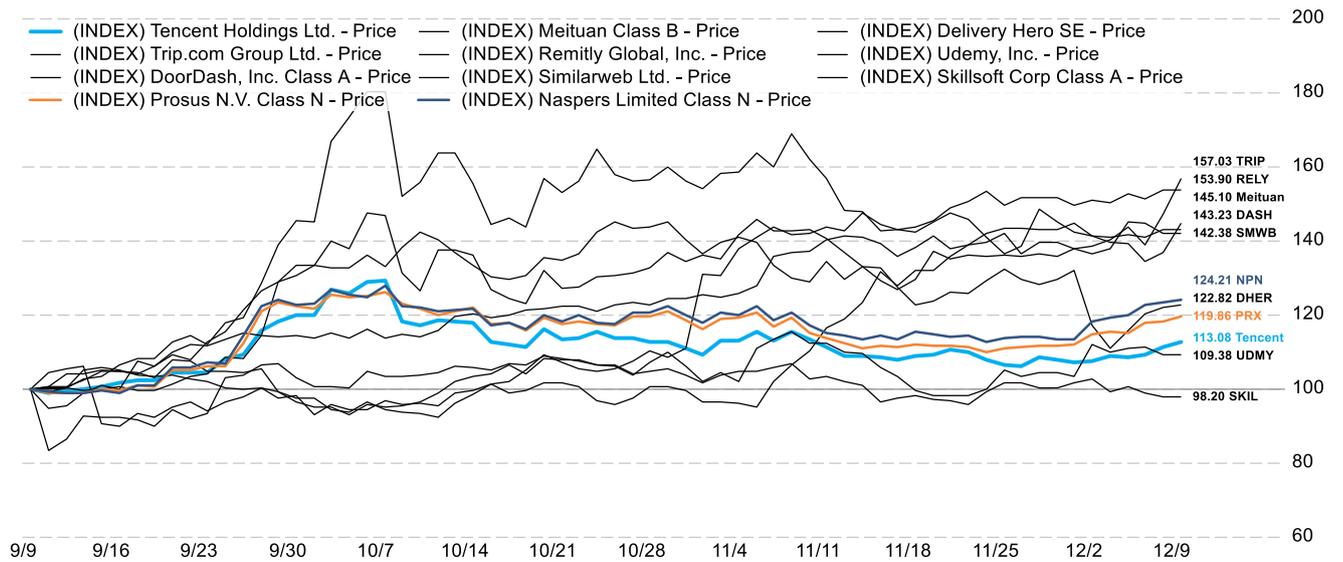

Qualitative summary

Qualitative summary – Naspers and Prosus

Factor review	Rating	Description
Growth		The leading driver of Naspers and Prosus is Tencent, which has an expected 3-year sales CAGR of 8% and an expected 3-year earnings CAGR of 26.2% . Prosus' e-commerce portfolio is growing significantly faster and has just turned an operating profit.
Valuation		Although these companies trade at discount to NAV, management has struggled to close them over time. The discount to NAV for Naspers (~35%) and Prosus (~32%) remains elevated despite attempts to reduce it over time.
Dividend yield		The dividend yield on Naspers and Prosus is 0.3% and 0.2%, respectively.
Issuance		In just the last few years, Naspers and Prosus have made significant changes to the holding structure which have twice resulted in the issuance of shares. Although these issuances have not diluted shareholders, they have resulted in unnecessary costs. Share repurchases have been positive.
Catalyst		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Attempts by management to close the discounts may also be viewed positively by the market. • Any assurance on regulatory easing by China will be positive for Tencent.
Quality of earnings		Tencent's margins have been volatile however, they remain relatively high (gross 40% to 49%; net =19% to 34%).
Moat		Despite preventing Western competitors like Google and Facebook from operating in China, Tencent's moat is questionable given the level of control that China has over publicly listed companies.
Management and governance		Apart from the investment in Tencent, management is considered a poor allocator of capital and a destroyer of value . Despite their efforts, they have failed to meaningfully reduce the discounts to NAV. New CEO Fabricio Bloisi's appointment became effective in July 2024.
Balance sheet		Prosus (and formerly Naspers) has historically maintained a strong balance sheet. Prosus ended the half year with net cash of $1.9bn . The removal of the restriction to sell Tencent provides the group with significant liquidity if need be.
Risks		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • China proscribes Tencent's VIE structure. • Management continues to allocate to loss-making investments. • Interference by the Chinese government/regulators is unpredictable. • US/China tensions place downward pressure on Tencent. • Foreign exchange risk.
Regulation		Due to the "strategically sensitive" nature of Tencent's assets, the Chinese government keeps Tencent on a tight leash. The implementation of regulations has historically been unpredictable and comes without warning.
Environmental Social and Governance (ESG)		According to FactSet, long-term ESG performance for Naspers/Prosus compared with the industry is average .
Momentum price		Price momentum for both Naspers and Prosus is currently neutral.
Momentum earnings		Earnings revisions are positive . Over the last three months, earnings revisions have increased by 4% for Naspers and rose by 8% for Prosus .

Appendix

Discount

In our valuation, we apply numerous discounts to incorporate the inherent risks associated with owning Naspers and Prosus. For Prosus, we firstly apply a 20% holding company discount to reflect the following:

- Management's limited control of Tencent
- Poor capital allocation history
- Complicated holding structure (management has proposed simplifying this)
- Wide portfolio of assets outside of management's expertise
- A larger than average South African holding company discount to NAV
- Changes in Regulation 28 increase offshore exposure

In addition to a holding company discount, we further apply the following discounts:

1. VIE risk: If China were to outlaw VIE structures and declare existing VIE structures illegal, the value of Tencent would be close to worthless. We assign a 10% probability to this binary scenario, resulting in a 10% discount.
2. Strategically sensitive asset discount: We apply a further 5% discount to account for risks associated with regulatory interference. China views Tencent as a strategically sensitive asset, given the widespread use of its social media and fintech portfolio.

The former restriction on the sale of Tencent shares is no longer applicable and supportive of a lower holding company discount. Table 7 shows the complete breakdown of our discount calculations which result in a discount of 40% for Prosus and 50% for Naspers.

Simplified holding structure

- In a previous report, we gave a detailed description of the historical holding structure. Post the collapse of the previous holding structure, which was implemented through the simultaneous issuance of new shares to respective free float shareholders, the current holding structure is much simpler and is detailed graphically below.
- Naspers has an economic interest of ~43% in Prosus but maintains control over Prosus through voting interest of ~72%.
- Prosus owns ~25% of Tencent

About PSG Wealth recommendations

PSG Wealth provides medium- to long-term recommendations based on the premium or discount that a company trades at, relative to our estimation of intrinsic value. We expect companies to re-rate towards their intrinsic value over a one- to three-year period. The long-term valuation is a quantitative-based valuation based on the fundamental performance of each company in the past, as well as their future forecasts. The fundamental features used are based on profitability and includes EPS growth and return on equity (ROE).

House view guidance: House view guidance is indicative only. Each client's circumstances are different, and it remains critical that indicative guidance is discussed with your portfolio manager or financial adviser.

Date and share price: The date the report was reviewed and approved by the portfolio committee is likely to precede the release date and price on the report.
